SECOND TERM
BEGINS MONDAY*Earlington Graded and High Schools has Record Attendance During Examination*FINE RESULTS INDICATED BY EXAMINATION NOW BEING MADE

Prof. Dudley said yesterday that the faculty of the Graded and High School were getting excellent results in the examinations now in progress and which will be completed today. One remarkable thing about it is that the attendance is very full, there being not more than one or two, perhaps, above the primary grade, who was apparently absent without good cause.

From what the Professor said it appears that the showing already made indicates an excellent average grade for the whole school on this examination.

The second term begins next Monday and will be a good time for those children to enter, who are now out of school. There are prospects that several will take advantage of this occasion to take up school work again, with possibly some additions from outside this district.

The Rural Schools.

The rural school is the school which most needs attention. It is to the improvement and the enlarged capacity of the rural school and that the people of Kentucky must look for relief from the burden of illiteracy the state so long has been carrying. The State needs more model schoolhouses in rural districts; it needs better equipped schools and, in numerous instances, better equipped teachers; it needs to awaken popular interest in the success of the country schools to the end that they may fulfill in largest degree the object of their existence.

In this connection it may be noted that a conference on rural schools will be held in Louisville at an early date. The conference which, the Courier Journal believes, was originally suggested by Mr. H. A. Sommers, of Elizabethtown, is designed to be more of a gathering of citizens than a convention of teachers and it is worthy the attention of all who are interested in educational progress. There is no disposition anywhere to decry the influence of the educators or to minimize the value of their work; but the time is at hand when the general citizenship of the state should take counsel of itself as to what can be done for the betterment of the schools. To that end the Louisville conference should elicit the interest and cooperation of thoughtful and public spirited men and women in every section of Kentucky. Courier Journal.

COAL FIELD EXTENSION

Will Cost the L. & N. $3,500,000 Before the Work is Done.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

Information was received in Cincinnati yesterday that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad plans to spend $3,500,000 in its ninety-eight-mile extension from Jackson into the Eastern Kentucky coal fields. The work on the Lexington & Eastern will make this road the greatest piece of operating work in the country, and by next fall an immense coal tonnage will be carried over the road. Most of the coal hauled over the L. & N. will be brought to Cincinnati and distributed from here to the middle Western States.

When President M. H. Smith outlined the plans for the work he stated that he would make the coal-country extension a monument to himself, as it will be some of the most remarkable railroad construction work done in the history of American railroading. If the entire line of the L. & N. was constructed on the same plan it would be ranked as the greatest piece of railroad engineering in the world.

Railroad men are unanimous in declaring that the honor for being one of the greatest railroad executives in the country should be handed to President Smith. They point to the fact that he has literally built the road "from two streaks of rust" to one of the greatest railroad systems in the country, profits have been put into improvements and to day the L. & N. is recognized as one of the most ably managed railroads in the United States, as "Milt" Smith has been ably termed "A railroad wizard."

The extension of the road will have twenty-one crossings and seven tunnels aggregating one and one half miles.

Good Crops and Open Winter Forcing Large Stocks on Market.

Food prices in Western cities have taken a sudden drop and it is expected by May 1 that the decrease will be general throughout the country. Banner crops and the open winter are the causes given for the falling off in prices. Chicago commission merchants say that millions of pounds of butter, eggs, cheese and poultry held in cold storage will be thrown on the market on May 1.

Butter is six cents lower in Chicago than it was a year ago and is selling to grocers at the lowest figures in five years. In St. Paul, food prices are about 10 per cent lower than a year ago, and the produce dealers say that the tendency is downward. In Cincinnati, eggs have dropped seven cents a dozen in the past but other commodities remain practically unchanged.

Birmingham—The open-hearth department of the Tennessee Co. has resumed in full after a shutdown since Dec. 27. That there is an order from the Louisville & Nashville for 30,000 tons of rails is admitted, but there is no official confirmation from the Tennessee Co. as to the report of the reception of one for 72,000 tons. In railroad circles, however, it is generally accepted because the Louisville & Nashville is to do an immense amount of double tracking this year.

That the eight hour law provision in the last naval bill is costing the government 25 to 30 per cent, additional in the construction of its Battleships; that the government yards are unable to compete with private ship builders, and that the restriction required that one Dreadnought of the two authorized each year should be built at a government yard ought to be removed, were statements made before Naval Affairs Committee of the United States House of Representatives last week by Secretary Meyer of the Department of the Navy.

SLIPPED NOOSE FROM HIS NECK

Jim West Escaped From Shelbyville Mob and Tells Story.

Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 19.—Positive information that Jim West, the Negro chauffeur, who was one of the three taken from the Shelbyville jail by the mob Sunday morning, escaped and is alive has been received here.

West was seen last night in a negro suburb on the outskirts of Shelbyville, and according to the statement of a man who talked with him, knows the names of a large number of those involved in the mob. As a result some interesting developments are promised if West can be captured.

As soon as he told his story, however, he left his hiding place, according to the man who saw him, and his present whereabouts are unknown.

West had no hesitation in explaining how he managed to escape from the mob. He said that when he and Patterson and Marshall were taken to the bridge to be hanged, ropes were put around their necks and they were pushed off at the same time. The rope on Marshall held, and that on Patterson broke and he was thrown into the water. West's hands were so loosely tied that he had managed to get them loose, and as he was pushed off the bridge he grabbed the rope with one hand. When the members of the mob were looking for Patterson, West slipped the noose over his head and started off down the creek away from the direction in which the mob was chasing Patterson, thus making his escape.

He made his way to a negro settlement, where he remained in hiding until discovered last night. Then he started out again and where he is now nobody seems to know.

It is reported that a small mob went out last night to attempt to find West but was unable to get any trace of him.

THE FARMER PROSPEROUS

Purchasing Power Has Increased Fifteen
Per Cent in Ten Years.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The increased cost of living has no terror for the American farmer, judging by the conclusion of the Department of Agriculture. In the last ten years the value of his products has been increasing at such a rate that the tiller of the soil is now able to afford hitherto undreamed of luxuries and the old homestead has been fitted with every modern convenience. In the crop reports just issued by the Department considerable space is devoted to the cost of living problem from the farmer's point of view. The report says:

"Within the past ten years the purchasing power of the farmers has increased more than 50 per cent. Such conditions are having and will continue to have more force in keeping the rising generation of farmers children upon the farm than volumes upon volumes of printed advice to stay there."

The statisticians in the Government were determined not to be misled by their figures. After compiling tables of the important crops which showed that the per acre value of the average farm throughout the country had gone up by leaps and bounds since 1899, they sought to discover what the farmer did with his money and how far it went.

With a mass of figures before them from which to draw comparisons, the statisticians set to work and now announce that while the cost of articles purchased has increased, the increase in purchasing power of each farm acre has outstripped it, and the farmer is left with a comfortable margin of profit for his work.

Physician Said Appendicitis Gall Stones Expelled by the Great Kidney Preparation

I thought I would do you a favor and let you know what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has done so far for me.

About one year ago I was taken sick with a terrible pain in my right side. My family physician pronounced it appendicitis. About two weeks ago I received your Almanac and read in it about weak kidneys, and my back hurting me so much, I thought I would try your Swamp-Root and to my great astonishment, after using one bottle, I expelled three gall stones, which weighed 135 grains—just think of it. My kidneys are not well yet, and so I have concluded to continue with Swamp-Root. Mr. Schwake, the druggist, thought that it never was appendicitis and that the doctor had made a mistake. It was no doubt, gall stones that caused the trouble, or they would not have come away so soon after commencing with Swamp-Root.

I shall always praise Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to all those who suffer from kidney, liver and bladder troubles and am very thankful that I ever discovered such a worthy remedy. I feel confident that it will cure me entirely of all kidney and liver trouble.

THOMPSON IS ACQUITTED

Trial Establishes That Murder was Committed With Automatic Gun.

DEEP MYSTERY IS YET UNRAVELED

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 19.—It developed in the examining trial of young Thomas Thompson that his father was killed by bullets from an automatic gun, which is different from the one that young Thompson was supposed to have had. One witness testified to digging a similar bullet out of the ground at the scene of the tragedy, which explodes the suicide theory.

Another witness testified to seeing two men near the scene of the tragedy. One wanted to go toward Cemetery Hill, the other tried to prevent him.

When Thompson left the store the fatal morning he said that he was going to hunt his son Thomas. He took along a vial of medicine and a revolver. Young Thompson is thought to be establishing an alibi, and the trial is expected to leave the case as great a mystery as ever.

Detective Sutton was the last witness for the Commonwealth, but his evidence was not considered of great importance.

The defendant was then placed on the stand and told his story. He stated that when his father was missing at dinner, and he was sent to look for him, he went to the graveyard, because he heard shots there and thought his father might have been hunting. He was on the stand two hours. Thompson was acquitted.

Good Woman Gone.

Mrs. Henry Wyatt passed away Thursday morning at two o'clock after a long illness of stomach trouble. She was thirty-seven years old and a member of the Methodist church, she leaves a husband and two children. Funeral services were conducted at the residence on Main street yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock by Rev. Henry Moore and the burial took place immediately afterward at the cemetery in the presence of a large number of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Wyatt was a good woman, a model wife and mother and bore her long suffering with christian fortitude.

FILL my hour, ye gods, so that I shall not say, whilst I have done this, "Behold, also, an hour of my life is gone," but rather, "I have lived an hour."
—Emerson.

Bad Price, Bad Work.

Craftsmanship used to be the keynote of labor. He aim was to produce an excellent thing, to sell at a good price. The modern business man tries to produce quickly a rotten and fantastic article, so as to be able to sell at a bad price in enormous quantities. So far is this paradox true that a real economist nearly always buys the most expensive things, and the cheapjack is as far as not a millionaire.—R. R. Buckley, in London T. P.'s Weekly.

Unique Undertaking.

Running a store on the "honesty system" is to be undertaken by the farmers of Stony Ford Grange Middleton, N. Y. A stock will be supplied and when a member wishes to obtain anything therefrom he will be entrusted with the key of the storeroom and whatever he takes he will make a note of and leave the price. If he takes more than he leaves the money for, he will not be trusted a second time.

A Happy Comet.

Harry, aged six years, was greatly excited over his first trip on a steamboat, and his father allowed him to stay on deck with him for a while in the evening. His attention was at once directed to the light of the searchlight moving to and fro. Excitedly, he grasped his father's hand and said: "Daddy, look! There must be a happy comet near here. See how he wags his tail."

Ancient Ceremony.

The ancient ceremony of placing leaves in which coins had been inserted on the tombstone in Selston churchyard, Notts, for old people to pick up and take away, was observed the other Sunday.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what an Earlington citizen says:

Mrs. H. C. Smith, Earlington, Ky., says: "I was afflicted with kidney trouble for years. I had severe pains in the small of my back and whenever I stopped or lifted, the attacks were particularly acute. My back ached at night and when I arose in the morning I was very lame. I became tired easily, felt languid and was frequently troubled by headaches and spells of dizziness. I knew that my kidneys were disordered, as the secretions from these organs were unnatural. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and received relief from the time I began using them. The contents of two boxes of this remedy cured me. I shall recommend Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

BURIED TREASURE

KENTUCKY'S POSSIBILITIES WAIT-ING TO BE UNEARTHED.

Prof. C. J. Norwood, Curator of Kentucky Geological Survey, Shows in Interesting Address Before Kentucky Press Association the Great Possibilities of This State.

In an address before the Kentucky Press Association at Louisville, December 28, 1910, Prof. C. J. Norwood, of the Kentucky Geological Survey, spoke as follows:

Gentlemen of the Kentucky Press Association:

I shall not undertake to discuss in any detail all the buried treasure of Kentucky, which I understand to mean mineral resources, for three reasons. First, to do so in anything like an adequate way would be utterly impossible in a paper like this. Second, since I occupy a position, the duties of which call for efforts to bring men and money to the State, to assist in developing our mineral deposits and in establishing industries within the State for their utilization, as well as to give information to our own citizens concerning what they have, I want to appeal to you for help. Third, I want to offer some suggestions as to how you may assist in promoting the growth of agriculture in the State. I will add a fourth reason: I wish to say something about the census, since that not only is a live topic just now, but as regards population is of much interest to those concerned with the mineral resources of the State.

One hundred years ago, according to Seybert's Statistical Annals (published in Philadelphia in 1818), Kentucky had a population of 406,511 persons, of whom 324,237 were "free whites." In ninety years the number grew to 2,147,174, and in the succeeding ten years we have reached 2,289,905—a gain of only 142,731 in the ten years, or only a little more than 6.6 per cent.

The smallness of the gain has shocked us. Without stopping to make any real investigation of the cause, many of us—contrary to all traditions—at once entered upon a course of self-condemnation that has been astounding, and our conduct has been no less hysterical than that of the suddenly converted. Blindly groping for an explanation of the census returns, some of us seem to have adopted the idea—originally the spawn of politics—that Kentucky is criminal, or at least criminally careless. All sorts of reasons have been given for the smallness of the increase of population. Illiteracy, night riders, poor schools, feuds, bad roads, bad taxation laws, rotten elections, murders and a lot of other ugly things have been set up as the causes; in fact, almost everything from toadstools to hook-worms has been blamed—almost everything except Halley's comet.

I do not know whether you gentlemen of the press have ever charged yourselves with any part of the poor showing we have made or not. I do not know whether you yourselves shoulder any part of the blame or not. But isn't it possible that at least some of you have so emphasized the fact that "a little leaven leaveneth the whole loaf," that one had man from Bitter Creek has been made to give tone to the whole State? If so, would it not have been just as well to have used the man from Peaceful Valley instead? As for me, I believe the Peaceful Valley man represents the State, and that the man from Bitter Creek is merely an excrescence, and that he can be eliminated without ringing the riot alarm.

It may be, however, that I have misunderstood the recent clamor. Some years ago, as I remember it, Mr. Watterson, after a vigorous campaign in behalf of the Star-eyed Goddess, was charged with the awful crime of preaching free trade, pure and simple. He replied that the charges were wrong. What he wanted was not absolute free trade, but tariff reform; that, maybe, he had talked free trade somewhat more than less, but in doing so he was simply adopting the method of the man on one side of a street who wished to stop a man on the other side in order that he might have an important talk with him—he first yelled to attract the other man's attention, and then, having gained it, crossed over and conversed in quiet tones.

And so it may be that much of this recent shouting—I will not say how recent—has really been to attract our attention. If so, please remember that Mr. Watterson's man didn't keep on yelling; he crossed over and spoke quietly. And now that our attention has been attracted, let us exchange the compliments of the day and get to the real business of the times—that of encouraging a dignified self-respect throughout the State of pandering to the fear of alien enemies and of promoting confidence in the State and its people, and a better understanding of our responsibilities to the young generations.

It may appear that in commenting on the explosion following the census returns I have wandered far from the subject of my paper; this may be. Nevertheless, I am thinking of our "buried" treasures that may come nearer to explaining the disappointing census figures than do the reasons I have heard and read.

I am thinking of the treasure washed from our at one time culturable hillsides and dipping farmlands, through poor agricultural methods, and buried in the Gulf of Mexico—resulting in the emigration of the careless stewards to new lands.

I am thinking of our treasures in men and women—the thousands of them—who, so far as we are concerned, are "buried" in Oklahoma, in Texas, and in other States, as the result of the efforts of local emigration agents, who have been and are now working 365 days in the year to so bury them! And what are we doing to offset this emigration? Surely, the glowing accounts of these other lands that our own home papers print, and that the alien papers and magazines that come into the State print, alongside with catalogues of our own faults, do not constitute an offset.

With local agents working for emigration to other States, and some of our own papers indulging in editorials that tend to persuade the world that Kentucky is among all the States the worst governed, the worst taxed, the worst in educational facilities, and the worst in miscellaneous ways—including murder, arson and feuds—how could one expect the population of the State to grow? With our own people persuaded to leave and strangers scared out of coming, it seems to me that only an optimist of the rarest breed would expect growth. Kentucky has done well to show any increase at all; she has done so despite persuaded emigration and self-abuse.

Gentlemen, let us stop bumping our own heads. We do have our faults. We do have some feuds. Our taxation system may not be perfect. Our educational facilities do need to be increased and improved. We should, indeed, work to remedy every defect. But why be so violent about it? Why explode so much dynamite in order to dislodge a few obstructing rocks that the whole State is blown up? There are 119 counties in Kentucky. Why hold up the delinquencies of some of them in such fashion as to make them appear representative of all other counties? Why not emphasize the fact that the State as a whole is one of the best places in the world where in which to make a home and rear the generations that are to follow us? You know that to be true. Why not emphasize the fact that feuds and assassinations are no more representative of this State than are the feuds and murders in other States representative of them? You also know that to be true.

Some years ago the late Richard P. Rothwell said in an editorial in the Engineering and Mining Journal: "Kentucky is by nature, beyond all question, one of the most favored States in this country." No one questions that, but according to my reading most persons put the State's value in agricultural advantages to the forefront, whereas, fine as it is for farming purposes, it is, taken as a whole, greater in a mineral way. This latter fact is, apparently, more keenly appreciated by citizens of other States than by our own people. It is easier to obtain Kentucky capital for the development of mineral deposits in other States than it is to get it for the development of better deposits in our own State. It seems true, indeed, that "To be interested in distant objects, like the moon, and to neglect what lies at our feet, appears to be a trait of human nature."

Of the total expanse of the State (41,283 square miles), about 16,670 square miles are covered by coal-bearing formations, in which occur, according to locality, from nine to twelve or more workable coals; a region of about 2,000 square miles in the west is rich in veins of fluorspar, barytes and calc spar, with some lead and zinc; in the central part lead, barytes and calc spar veins, with some fluorspar, are found in enormous numbers distributed over an area of about 4,000 square miles; over the whole of Jackson's Purchase region, about 2,340 square miles, splendid clays abound, together with sands of high value, valuable silicious earths, lignite beds, and other minerals; adjacent to the eastern and southern margins of the western coalfield is an area of perhaps 1,000 square miles in which are found excellent plastic clays and some kaoline, while on the western margin of the same field are large areas of high-class refractory clays, or "fire-sands," with some kaolins. In addition, we have great areas of fine clays and cement-making materials on the rim of the central region; superior cement materials are also found in the margins of both coalfields and elsewhere. Then, also, we have large areas of the highest grade of fireclay in the eastern coalfield, hundreds of square miles of excellent iron ore, favorably placed with reference to fuel and flux; great areas of limestone and sandstone of the highest value for structural and other purposes; large areas of "rock asphalt," for paving, road-making and other purposes; an abundance of well-distributed road-making material other than limestone, consisting of clays for burning as such or mixed with sand, also chert and black shales; notably extensive fields of petroleum and natural gas, and of salt brines, large areas of potash shales and extensive areas of phosphate limestone and nodules; regions of glass sand, of molders' sand, of flint, of metallic paint beds and pigment earths; areas of excellent lithographic stone, and so on. We have all that, and yet the selling value of our mineral output, including cement and clay products, at the place of production, doubtless did not exceed $18,000,000 for the current year.

Now, I believe that the press in its anxiety to build up the State, has been prone to dwell too much on the immediate importance of obtaining an increase in the agricultural population. To increase such a population —to have a larger percentage of our soil in cultivation—is a desirable thing, but I fear we have not gone about the business in quite the right way. Aside from the fact that it is of first importance to get better results from the soil we are already cultivating, we must first increase the industrial population of the State before we can hope to make any great advance in diversified farming; when that is done the agricultural increase will come, and we will, at the same time, be able to hold our young farmers at home. The farmer must have a better home market for his products; otherwise we need not expect an increase of prosperity simply through an increase in the number of farmers.

It seems to me that while we have hitherto rather thoroughly exploited the agricultural side of the State, we have failed to pay sufficient attention to the mineral side—not coal alone, but the varied mineral resources of the State.

I believe that if the editors will emphasize the mineral advantage of their regions more fully than has been the case hitherto, and work for the establishment of industries that may be based on them, they will accomplish more toward building up agriculture than can be done otherwise, since as the mining and manufacturing industries grow, the home-market for agricultural products will grow.

See what coal-mining alone has done! From an output of 5,020,675 tons in 1900, the production of commercial coal has grown, according to present indications, to about 12,900,000 tons in 1910; possibly somewhat less, and possibly even 13,000,000 tons. This is an increase of about 7,879,000 tons, or about 157 per cent in the ten years, and we have just begun to mine coal.

The number of coal miners has also grown greatly; indeed, such gain in population as we have made since 1900 appears to be very largely, if not most largely due to mining. I believe it within reasonable bounds to estimate that the gain in the last ten years, exclusive of that portion of the population employed in mining, has been less than 80,000.

In 1900 there were 10,222 persons employed at the coal mines. Those employed at clay, fluorspar, barytes and iron mines may be estimated at 500, making a total of 10,722 miners. Assuming that 85 per cent of these miners represent families of five persons, and I believe that is somewhere near the correct proportion, the mining population in 1900 was about 47,178.

The total population was reported as 2,147,174. Subtracting the mining families leaves 2,100,000 as the non-mining population in 1900.

In 1910 about 24,919 persons were employed at the coal mines, and about 1,000 at other mines. These probably represent a population of about 113,000.

Subtracting this mining population from the total population reported reverts leaves 2,176,900 as the non-mining population, which is an increase of only 76,900 for the ten years. If these figures prove to be approximately correct, it shows that while there has been a gain of more than 141 per cent in the coal-mining population alone, the gain in other population was but little more than 3.6 per cent.

Were we to base calculations on the population represented by all families whose subsistence is dependent upon wages earned in the production of mineral substances in the State, thus including stone quarries, petroleum and natural gas, with the coal, clay, fluorspar, barytes, calcite and iron mines, we would naturally find that our gain since 1900 has been due chiefly to the development of our mineral values.

I believe that the growth of this State is to come through mining and the development of our oil and natural gas resources, and of manufactures allied with mining.

If it is to become a sheep-raising State, it must come through mining. If it is to become a cattle-raising State—not simply a grower of blooded herds—it must come through mining. If it is to be eminent as more than a tobacco-growing State, agriculturally, it must come through mining. When the people of the medium good lands, and of the poor lands, and of the impoverished lands see a local market developed they will take greater interest in improved farming, in scientific farming, in fertilizing, in intensive farming, and a tide of immigration will turn toward our State that we can not otherwise expect.

Kentucky is indeed one of the richest States in "buried treasures." You have done much to bring them to light; you can do more. Educate the people to a better understanding of tax laws; work for conditions that will be more favorable for an increase of manufactures; teach Kentucky capital to stay at home and assist in building up Kentucky, instead of building up other States that, so built up, lure our people away to their borders; cease relying solely on outside capital; continue the work for good roads; work for a forestry law of some real value; pay more attention to the matter of improving our inland streams; teach better farming and preach against the fearful waste of our soils. Glorify the dear Old Kentucky, with her happy memories and homely ways, but preach a wholesome New Kentucky, a young man's Kentucky, a progressive Kentucky, a Kentucky whose future shall be commensurate with the wealth with which nature has endowed her; and at the end of the coming ten years the census will tell us quite another story from that over which we now are troubled.

Lame back may come from overwork, cold settled in the muscles of the back, or from disease. In the two former cases the right remedy is BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. It should be rubbed in thoroughly over the affected part, the relief will be prompt and satisfactory. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by St. Bernard Drug Store, of the St. Bernard Mining Co. Incorporated.

If you have not secured your seat for the K. K. Minstrels on the night of Jan. 23rd better get it now.

FAILING GAS SUPPLY MAKES COAL BUSINESS GOOD

Hundreds of Kansas City People Who Used Gas—Now Burn Coal.

Coal dealers of Kansas City report that the partial failure of the natural gas supply in the surrounding fields has brought them hundreds of new customers and that more people than that city and suburbs are using coal for heating now and has been the case since natural gas was first introduced. Many householders still use gas when the weather is moderate, but when it gets very cold the pressure is insufficient to provide all the heat needed and they have to fall back on coal. The coal men of that section believe that this is a growing feature and that their domestic trade will become more important every year as the gas deposits become exhausted.—Coal Trade Journal.

BUREAU OF MINES WILL BLOW UP A COAL MINE

Big Coal Dust Explosion to be Produced in a Pennsylvania Mine.

The Bureau of Mines is preparing to touch off an explosion in a real coal mine to demonstrate the explosibility of coal dust. Some say that the Government experiments at Pittsburgh have only a theoretical value because they are conducted in a steel tank and not in a mine. The Government is trying to hammer into the heads of the doubters that it is coal dust, not gas, that causes the most terrible mine disasters. They have bought a mine and will blow it up to prove it.

The experimental explosions will have all the characteristics of the real disaster, without the usual loss of life, for there will be no one in the Government mine when the dust explodes. When the poisonous gases have been driven out the experts will enter and study the effects of the explosion. Scientists have long known that the dust of coal, wood and grain is explosive; it is only within three years that they have discovered that coal dust is an explosive as powerful as dynamite.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Potatoes Better Than Gold.
Carlyle once told a man who was "financially interested in gold mining that all the gold ever produced in California was not worth one good mealy potato. And yet the potato in Scotland has a history of less than two hundred years. When Macdonald of Clanranald, in 1743, bought seed potatoes for his tenants in South Ulster they objected to planting them because the potato is not mentioned in the Bible.

AD-TALK

What would you think of a salesman who reported for duty one day, lay off for two, worked a half day, went off for a week and so on without any regularity? Surely you would not expect good service from such a man. And yet some merchants hold advertising, which is simply a "salesman," up to great results when it is allowed to "work" very irregularly. The fact that advertising costs money is proof of its value. Things without cost are usually worth only their price.

Girls Sold in Slavery.

In Yunnan, China, girls are still sold into slavery. In one year about 300 children from this neighborhood were sold to dealers and carried to the capital in baskets like poultry. At ordinary times the price for girls is 75 cents for each year of their age, but in time of famine children become a drug on the market.

Strange Bird!

My two little nieces had a bird given to them and were very anxious to see it bathe. On seeing it get into the water or the first time, the three-year-old child exclaimed: "Why, I declare! if it isn't getting right into the water with all its feathers on.—The Delinquent."

Cloistered Virtue.

I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and seeks her adversary, but slinks out of the race where that immortal garland is to be run for, not without dust and heat.—Milton.

GOV. WILLSON EQUIPING STATE GUARD WELL

Competent Instructors Will Visit Each Command for Three Nights.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 18.—Only a lack of interest and energy upon the part of the men and officers of the Kentucky State Guard will prevent the State soldiers from presenting as creditable an inspection this year as do the guards of the more-favored Northern States.

Gov. Willson, who has the welfare of the guards deeply at heart, is determined that in the way of equipment and opportunity nothing will be allowed to lack, and all the State's resources for military purposes will be used to bring it to a state of high efficiency before the inspections, which are expected to be held the last two weeks in April.

He has authorized the Adjutant General's office to put into effect the following innovations:

A competent instructor, accompanied by a United States army Sergeant, will visit each command for three nights to instruct it in the exercises that will be required for the inspection, and in the proper method of caring for and displaying the property and putting it in the best condition; and for attending this instruction officers and men will be paid a small amount sufficient at least to cover their expenses; company commanders will be allowed to designate a man to clean and care for the arms and ordnance property of the organization, at a salary of $5 per month; canvas coverings will be furnished for the protection of the arms in the arms racks, and substantial wooden chests with padlocks will be furnished each company for the storage of surplus property.

From now on until the date of the inspection the Adjutant General's Department, at the personally expressed desire of Klub Kentuck's Great Attraction.

In introducing the Orpheum Minstrels, which comes to the Temple Theatre, under the direction of the Klub Kentuck Band, Monday evening only, Jan. 23, the sole purpose of the management was to offer something in the way of minstrelsy that is a decided departure from the usual amusement in this line. The first step was taken when a mixed company of ladies and gentlemen was secured. This alone is worthy of mention as prior to this, no minstrel was ever attempted of this kind. There are a few ladies minstrels, but as a general rule these are small and many other parts of a minstrel performance is left out of their offerings. In the Orpheum Minstrels, a complete minstrel first part, a feature olio of six headline Vaudeville acts, and an after piece will be given. Each part of the program has been carefully selected and when combined from on evening entertainment that is hard to equal much less surpass.

Band concerts before the performance and during the intermission will be rendered and the music program will be one of the entertaining features of the performance. Seats on sale at news stand.
